

Six more weeks of winter in offing

Punxsutawney Phil, the groundhog, sees his shadow

PUNXSUTAWNEY, Pa. (AP) — Phil, the groundhog who made Punxsutawney famous, emerged from an electrically heated burrow in subzero weather today and saw his shadow — a sign that winter weather is in store for at least six more weeks.

Phil's forecast came as the sun rose in clear but chilly skies. Although the temperature hovered at minus-10 degrees, members of the Punxsutawney Groundhog Club's inner circle watched Phil emerge from hibernation.

Legend has it that if the groundhog sees his shadow on Feb. 2, winter will last another six weeks.

Some skeptics, mostly from out of state, have claimed that Phil actually came out of hibernation a week ago and that today's ceremony was staged by the Punxsutawney Groundhog Club and its leader, Sam Light. Those skeptics point out that the celebrated burrow is wired for heat — at the advice of zoo consultants — to prompt Phil's exit.

Those same skeptics might suggest that Phil, and his mate Phillis, actually spend the year in the comfortable surroundings of the Punxsutawney Groundhog Museum, where they live on a diet of dog food.

But Light insists everything is on the up and up. "That's a bunch of malarkey," he says of the skeptics' claims, noting that Phil's predictions make the Congressional Record each year. "If the government recognizes it, who's the average Joe to say it isn't so?"

For the past quarter century, Light has approached Phil's Gobbler's Nob burrow each Feb. 2, dressed in top hat and tails, and rapped on the door with his acacia wood cane. According to tradition, Phil then emerges from his winter's sleep.

Light, 79, was hospitalized with broken ribs this year and Charles Erhard took his place. Erhard is Director of Groundhogese Communication.

Groundhog Day has its roots in European history and is tied to the Christian festival of Candlemas. An old saying goes, "If Candlemas be fair, there'll be two winters in the year."

It also is connected to the Pennsylvania Dutch legend that the hedgehog is the weather forecaster. Phil isn't a hedgehog, but he has 90 years of experience.

Two hurt as train hits car

A Dixon woman and her grandson were injured when their car was struck by a train at a crossing on North Jefferson Avenue shortly before 11 a.m. this morning. Florence Freeberg, 58, and James Rodriguez, 5, address unavailable, were being treated at KSB Hospital. Freeberg was northbound on Jefferson Avenue and said she did not see the Illinois Central train approaching the crossing. As she went across the tracks, her car was struck in the right side by the engine which was moving at approximately 10 miles per hour. Investigating Dixon Police said that an arrest is pending. ## May nationalize oil field in Angola

By The Associated Press British correspondents reported today that the Soviet-backed Popular Movement (MPLA) in Angola is planning to nationalize the Cabinda oil field if the American Gulf company does not resume production soon.

Another British correspondent reported that Western-backed forces in both north and south Angola are putting up stiff resistance to the advancing MPLA forces.

Gulf was producing 150,000 barrels a day from the offshore Cabinda field until December, when it shut down production at the insistence of the U.S. State Department so that the MPLA would not get the oil revenues.

A.J. McIlroy of the London Daily Telegraph said MPLA Prime Minister Lopo do Nascimento has stated the Angolans will develop their own oil if the Americans continue their "economic blockade."

Nicholas Ashford of the Times of London said Nascimento told him if Gulf does not resume production soon, his government would have to seek other means of exploiting the Cabinda field.

"This would not be difficult as, according to a local Gulf representative, there is no shortage of other companies wanting to take over Gulf's operations," Ashford wrote in a dispatch from Cabinda, an MPLA-controlled enclave separated from Angola by a narrow strip of Zaire and the Congo river estuary.

Ashford added that Gulf had cabled Nascimento that the resumption of production was to be considered at a meeting of the company's board of directors this week. He said this was taken as an indication that Gulf might be planning to return.

McIlroy said the MPLA is claiming more than $2 billion in royalties from Gulf.

A second Angolan oil field is off Santo Antonio do Zaire, just south of the Zaire border. It is controlled by the Western-backed National Front (FNLA), but McIlroy said advancing MPLA forces would probably take it over soon.

The report of new military resistance by the FNLA and the National Union (UNITA) came from Jane Bergeol of the London Financial Times. She said military sources in Luanda, the MPLA capital, reported that South African troops were still fighting alongside UNITA troops and had slowed down the MPLA drive on Huambo, the UNITA capital in south central Angola.

"The sources claim there is a South African-led attempt to push the MPLA away from the strategic crossroads of Alto Hama," she said.

The South African forces were reported last week to have withdrawn to Angola's southern border with South-West Africa.

Earlier optimism in Luanda that the MPLA would soon take Huambo has decidedly cooled, Miss Bergeol reported.

She said that on the northern front FNLA forces who had been driven almost to the Zaire border were putting up strong resistance in an attempt to maintain a foothold along the Congo estuary.

Norman Kirkham, diplomatic correspondent of the London Sunday Telegraph, reported that diplomats in Zaire told him more than $20 million is to be spent on mercenaries to fight for the FNLA, and most of the money is coming from the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency.

Worst blizzard in years rakes East Coast

By The Associated Press Swirling snow driven by blizzard-force winds struck the East Coast during the night, knocking out power, forcing airports and schools to close and bringing rush-hour traffic to a virtual standstill in many areas.

A special report from the National Weather Service in New York called the storm "the most severe weather in this area in several years" and urged people to stay indoors if possible. Forecasters warned that exposure to the cold could result in frostbite.

There also was heavy snow in parts of the Midwest. Accumulations in the East were small, but winds of up to 60 miles an hour combined with the cold to make travel dangerous and hamper clean-up operations.

La Guardia, Kennedy, Newark and Albany airports were closed. The New York Stock Exchange said the opening of trading would be delayed indefinitely because of the weather.

The weather was clear but cold — 10 degrees below zero — in Punxsutawney, Pa., as members of the Punxsutawney Groundhog Club watched Phil the groundhog emerge from hibernation in his electrically heated burrow.

Legend has it that if the groundhog sees his shadow on Feb. 2, winter will last another six weeks. To no one's surprise, Phil saw his shadow today.

The bad weather that hit the East was caused by a low pressure storm which developed off North Carolina late Sunday night and moved up the Jersey coast and into New England early today.

The temperature in New York City was 14 degrees at 8 a.m. and was expected to keep falling. Winds were gusting up to 59 miles per hour, making it feel like 29 degrees below zero. The snow tapered off by 9 a.m., but much of the damage already had been done.

Mayor Abraham D. Beame said all of the city's 6,000 miles of roadways were treacherous. New York-area highways were impassable to traffic because of stalled vehicles and a 240-mile stretch of the New York State Thruway from Spring Valley north was closed.

Here is a rundown of the situation in some other areas:

—MICHIGAN: Record-cold temperatures hit much of the state with a reading of 11 below zero in Detroit. Some 10,000 persons were affected by scattered power outages. The cold followed a Sunday snow storm that left drifts up to six feet in some areas.

—NORTH CAROLINA: About six inches of snow fell in the western mountains on Sunday and winds in coastal areas reached 70 miles an hour. School systems in seven counties were closed because of snow which was still falling in some spots.

—PENNSYLVANIA: Highways across the state were covered by a layer of ice and snow and winds were gusting to more than 50 miles an hour. A state police spokesman said the wind was blowing the salt off the roads as soon as it was put down.

—VERMONT: High winds and snow reduced visibility to near zero. Castleton State College closed for the first time in its history. Power was knocked out in White River Junction in the southern part of the state.

—INDIANA: Eighteen inches of snow was reported in South Bend in northwest Indiana. A snow emergency was declared and schools and most roads were closed.

Richardson to join Ford cabinet today

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford welcomes Elliot Richardson to his Cabinet as commerce secretary at White House swearing-in ceremonies, making it the fourth such top-level job for Richardson, a record.

He comes to his new post today after serving as U.S. ambassador to Great Britain and service under former President Richard M. Nixon as attorney general, secretary of defense and health, education and welfare.

Ford also has scheduled meetings today to push for House passage of a natural gas deregulation bill and to make some final decisions on his forthcoming proposals for intelligence reform legislation.

Republican congressional leaders were invited to a late afternoon strategy session at the White House in an effort to put last minute pressure on Congress to end price controls on natural gas.

A crucial House vote is scheduled Tuesday, and White House aides predict it will be "very close."

The government has been regulating natural gas prices since 1938, and Ford maintains that the controls are outmoded and are causing shortages by holding back production.

The President's weekend included a speaking appearance before 1,000 Midwestern Republican leaders meeting in Dearborn, Mich., Saturday. He suggested they call their congressmen and convince them to pass deregulation.

Ford also scheduled action today on another top priority issue — reform of government intelligence operations in the wake of congressional disclosures of abuses in CIA and FBI operations. Ford has announced that he will send his reform proposals to Congress shortly, perhaps next week.

Dropouts from UFO cult gathering at halfway house

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Deserters from the Great Lost UFO Cult are straggling back after a summer and fall of spiritual wandering, settling gently to earth in a pleasant rustic halfway house in the seclusion of Topanga Canyon.

They have dropped out by choice, most of them disillusioned with what was to have been a journey to a new life beyond the earth promised by the cult's elusive leaders, Bo and Peep, also known as The Two.

Last April, an original group of 24 threw off their families and possessions and dropped out of sight. Many others joined later.

They followed The Two, later identified as Marshall Herff Applewhite, 44, and Bonnie Lu Trusdale Nettles, 48, of Houston. The leaders promised that those who dared to give up everything would be transported aboard a UFO to another spiritual plane.

Followers were required to bring camping gear, clothes, a vehicle and some money. They traveled to various parts of the country, some camping in the desert.

Most of the followers, according to Joan Culp, are now scattered across the warmer states of the West and Southwest, still believing they will "graduate" to a higher state of spiritual knowledge.

Joan, as everyone calls her, was one of the original group. But late last fall she and another follower, Tod Burger, dropped out. They set up the halfway house in a comfortably dilapidated, $200-a-month, two-story house in the hills northwest of Los Angeles.

Joan had been a businesswoman. Her defection came when leaders of her group began to look on her as too outspoken and accused her of creating dissension. They left her and her partner — all followers travel in pairs — in Sedona, Ariz.

She had paid $400 into what was supposed to be a communal survival fund, and had gotten less than $100 back in grocery money, she says.

Joan knows of less than a score of dropouts, but she believes "the attrition rate is pretty high." A handful have come through her center, some staying a few hours, some for days.

"Some have gone back to their former lives and it's beautiful," she said. "Sometimes it's not." One of those who couldn't go home again is under treatment by a psychologist; two are in Arizona "getting themselves together," she said.

Joan estimates that about 300 persons are still in the movement, and that the defections don't signal a waning of its vitality.

Boston firemen fight big blaze

BOSTON (AP) — More than 300 fire fighters, the largest number in the city's history to battle a single blaze, worked to contain a fire that engulfed an old shoe factory here late Sunday night and early today, causing more than $1 million in damage.

Five fire fighters suffered minor injuries, but there were no injuries reported among about 40 persons who lived in apartments on the top floors of the rambling six-story brick complex in the Jamaica Plain section.

Fire Capt. John Collins said about 30 persons were rescued by aerial ladder trucks from the roof of the burning building and two companies of fire fighters trapped inside the blazing structure after a stairway collapsed were also rescued.

"When I looked out I saw a wall of flame," said John Reavis, a resident of the building who called in the first fire alarm. "It was near the smokestack area, near the power plant, and was at or in the main building itself."

Fire Commissioner George Paul said more men were sent to the scene of the fire than to any other Boston fire ever. He provided the damage estimate.

Paul said the fire was of suspicious origin, noting that three separate fires broke out in the building — the old Plant Shoe Co. — about 10 p.m. Sunday.

Gerald Ford's promise

My memory tells me that when Ford was appointed vice president he said, "I will not run for President." Ford makes statements of what he will do, then vacillates on another course.

When Ford moved into the White House, at his first broadcast he said, "Inflation is our number one problem." Since then he has signed many bills into law that have increased our national debt, which of course, creates more inflation and higher living costs for you. Ford has vetoed many bills but to stop inflation it is necessary to veto most of the bills that the Democratic Congress is passing.

Time and again Ford has indicated he would do certain things, then a little later would change his course.

When New York City was on the verge of bankruptcy, Ford said he would not allow the federal government to bail out the city of New York. A few days later he proposed a plan to keep the politicians in New York from bankruptcy. In spite of the fact that New York City is spending at the annual rate of $1,200 per capita of its population. The average city in the United States spends $300 per capita per year.

Ford is taking your tax money to relieve the spendthrift politicians and careless bankers who loaned them money for many years. Is this the type of man you want to run your government?

Don't think for a minute that New York City is the only place run by cheating, thieving politicians. There are numerous cities and states in just as bad a situation, who will now request help from the federal government, which means the United States taxpayers.

The Cabinet members Ford appointed are mostly liberals, also the appointment of many liberals to head the various departments is detrimental to the conservative voters. Picking Elliott Richardson to manage the Department of Commerce, or Atty. Gen. Levi to lead the Department of Justice is certainly not on the side of conservatives.

When your slide-in President dismissed Defense Secretary Schlesinger, many citizens thought it would have been more beneficial to the free countries if the President had fired Henry Kissinger, instead of Schlesinger.

Today Kissinger stands alone at the apex of the United States policy-making decisions. He has control of all of American investigating commissions. Kissinger is attempting to give away our control of the Panama Canal. He is trying to have Congress lift our blockade of Cuba. He boosts the so-called advantage of the United Nations, who have cost the taxpayers thousands of dollars and done all freedom fighters much harm.

Although President Gerald Ford talks against big government, his appointments are for a bigger government along with more spending that creates more inflation and higher living costs to all.

In the first eleven months after he took office, the federal employment increased 63,945 to be supported by the taxpayers, or the Federal Printing Press, which is worse. President Ford has increased his own service at the White House about 45 per cent. A conservative President will do different than this liberal who wants to be your head man again. Don't forget who appointed Nelson Rockefeller vice president.

SALT loopholes

By RAY CROMLEY
WASHINGTON (NEA)— The Kissinger-Brezhnev strategic arms limitation proposals the Secretary of State is passing from hand to hand in the administration are incredible. So much so that some among the President's men are advocating postponement of public debate on whatever is finally decided along these lines, if possible, until after November's elections. And most certainly until after the Republican and Democratic nominating conventions.

The delay would be accomplished, according to this scenario, by holding off as long as possible on fine details—so that it would be late in the year before the projected treaty went to the Senate for ratification.

Without on-site inspections, which Moscow will not agree to, the Russians could thus safely build strategic weapons in violation of any treaty provisions. This is possible because increased range does not require outward design changes which would be detectable from the air, but rather improvements in the fuel and internal engine structure.

This missile is a bone of contention because it can be made to fly long distances at altitudes so low it can sneak under defense radar. Experts say satellite photograph do not provide the information necessary to distinguish between the 375-mile cruise missile which Kissinger and Brezhnev define as non-strategic and which therefore could be built at will—and a 1,000 or 1,100 mile strategic missile.

The Russians, in fact, could safely argue their 1,000-mile cruise missiles actually had a 375-mile range. With the proper choice of fuel they could "prove" it.

The proposals also reportedly call for limiting strategic cruise missiles to a 1,500-mile range—a proposal which is patently absurd on its face, because this limitation too can be so easily evaded. While it is possible for a satellite to tell a 375-mile missile from a 2,400-mile type, this ability does not extend to distinguish between 1,500 and 2,400 mile weapons. This assumes only that the Russians have the design knowhow which exists in this country or that they will achieve that ability in a few years.

Once you get above the 2,500-mile range, specialists say, the design, to be effective, must be significantly different. And certain distinguishable changes must be made in auxiliary equipment.

The Kissinger-Brezhnev proposals include other absurdities. They provide, as reported, that Soviet intercontinental Backfire bombers would not be considered strategic weapons, thus would not be counted against the USSR strategic weapon total. But U.S. B-1 intercontinental bombers would be counted against the American allowance.

Kissinger's sophistry is apparent in the arguments he presents to convince one and sundry the Soviet Backfire is not strategic and therefore not capable of bombing strategic U.S. targets if its refueling gadgetry is removed and the plane is barred from Arctic bases in peacetime.

This is stuff and nonsense. Estimates on the time it would take for the Russians to reinstall the refueling equipment on a Backfire range from several hours to a day if the plane were manufactured with that in mind and the needed supplies were kept at hand. And regardless of basing restrictions, in time of war, which is what counts, the big Backfires could be staged through Arctic bases at will.

More importantly, the Backfires can reach American targets without refueling and without using Arctic bases.

South Africa's Angolan dilemma

LONDON (LENS)— The continuing rout of the National Front in northern Angola by the combined forces of the Popular Movement and its Cuban allies may have opened the way for a political compromise—of sorts—and an end to the fighting in Angola.

Several African states are now trying to muster support for a new proposal. This calls for the formation of a two-party coalition government, the stronger partner in which would be the popular Movement under its leader, Agostinho Neto, but which would include representatives of the third Angolan nationalist group, Unita. Holden Roberto's National Front, long an implacable enemy of the Popular Movement, now holds only a fringe of territory on the Zaire border, and would here fore be excluded.

Unita's leader, Jonas Savimbi, interviewed last week while flying to see Zambia's President Kaunda, Zaire's President Mobutu and Roberto, did not rule out a two-party coalition. Unita, he said was prepared to make concessions in order to stop the killing. If Neto wanted to be the president of a government of national unity, that was fine. But Unita must have the right to limit his powers. "No one is going to sell this country into Russian slavery."

The trouble is that Savimbi is not in a good position to call the tune. The Popular Movement's victory in the north has made it even more intransigent about any accommodation with its rivals. The minister of information of the Luanda-based regime said last Monday that the Popular Movement would continue to fight until Unita and its South African allies were expelled from the country. But he admitted that the Russians and the Cubans had not given any firm assurances about supporting the Popular Movement to the end.

If Neto and his colleagues do not get such an undertaking about continued help, and if they cannot inflict a crushing defeat on the Unita forces in central and southern Angola, they may have to revise their aims.

Unita's fear is that the Popular Movement will now bring its northern forces down to the southern battlegrounds, including the Soviet tanks and batteries of 122-mm rocket launchers which terrified Roberto's soldiers into headlong flight in the north.

Unita's troops, good fighters as they have shown themselves to be, will have small chance of stopping the advance of the Cubans and the Popular Movement without South Africa's help.

The debate within the South African government on what to do about Angola has continued. The prime minister, John Vorster, has to decide whether to pull out of the battle and concentrate on guarding the South West African border—plus the Cunene River hydroelectric installations on the Angolan side—or to strengthen the South African forces in the heart of Angola in order to counter the coming assault by the Cubans and the Popular Movement.

South Africa's parliament was due to meet this week, and Vorster is likely to be under strong pressure from his own party and the opposition to tell South Africans what is at stake and what the government intends to do.

If Vorster is convinced that South African interests will best be served by preventing, or even delaying, a Popular Movement victory, he will have to face the prospect of serious fighting between his troops and an estimated 9,000 Cubans. Casualties could be high and public opinion in South Africa, already showing signs of nervousness, could become positively hostile. But if he pulls out, he knows that no other army is likely to stand up to the Cubans.

76-year-old will be nation's first voter

By TOM TIEDE

DIXVILLE NOTCH, N.H. (NEA)— At one minute past midnight on the 24th of February, 76-year-old Neil Tillotson will deposit his primary ballot in a box normally reserved for the U.S. mail, and become the first American to formally vote in the 1976 presidential elections.

The honor will not come by accident. Dixville Notch is the place name for a frosty New England resort which the Millionaire Tillotson owns. The 21 residents here are his employees and he is, quite naturally, their mayor. Partly for the publicity then, the community has since 1960 opened its polling place at the break of every federal election day to cast the nation's initial ballot.

Tillotson will register on the Republican side of this primary, probably for Gerald Ford. But however he decides, he says, it will be for what he considers the best interests of the United States. Gimmickry aside, Tillotson believes the nation's first voter has a responsibility to light the way for the millions of others, not concerning party or person, but in regards to motives and thought.

In this sense the country is fortunate that Tillotson votes first. Better he than some hot dog performing for the "Guinness Book of Records." Born poor and now rich, Tillotson has been on both sides of the American experience, and has an appreciation for citizenship that comes only from a long view from opposite poles. Thus his vote does not drop lightly, but with care, and, assuredly, hope.

Fundamentally, Tillotson is a constructionist, at least so far as he believes all things are possible through applied individualism. The son of North Country hillbillies, he left home at 16, a refugee from rural privation and human stagnation. Eventually he created a process for affixing print to rubber, not an Edisonian idea, perhaps, but it was enough to establish him as an industrial mogul. Among other things, Tillotson now owns the largest surgical glove producing plant in the world. Not bad for a high school dropout.

Yet as a dropout who made good, the first voter is concerned about the erosion of the process by which such things are possible in the nation. He says more and more people are cheating on the system. "When I was young, the people worked with their hands, we were farmers and shoemakers and mechanics. We were rewarded for how much we did and how well we did it." Now, he sighs, the idea of success is to sit in an office, not a workshop; dirty fingernails are for the unfortunate, creating has become primarily a mental exercise.

The trouble with the modern way, says Tillotson, is that while labor becomes less meaningful, it also becomes less profitable. "I've nothing against people sitting in office skyscrapers," he says, rather his resentment is towards "the comparative rewards of their efforts." He fears that America has become a state where those who do the least labor have unjustified superiority over those who do the most.

And here is where Neil Tillotson reveals himself to be a most worthy first voter. Though conservative, a onetime Goldwater man who still carries the senator's campaign pin on his cap, Tillotson believes primarily in the worth of the common man. Why, he asks, should those in white collars have such a grip on the well-being and future of those in blue? They shouldn't, he believes, and so casts his first vote in the spirit of the equality of Everyman that created the Republic.

Beyond this, Tillotson says he is preparing to do more than vote for an America of more quality. Noting his age and assets, he says he is arranging for his business interests to "become employee-owned when I pass on." He feels the future of American capitalism must be rooted in greater incentive. "Our people's hearts are in the right places, we all know that. What needs to be done is to assure them the means to do more for themselves and for their country."

So it is with the people in mind the first voter will begin the long 1976 election process here next month. His choice of candidates may leave something to be desired, but that is almost incidental; 200 years after it all began, Neil Tillotson will mostly be voting for 200 more.

The regular annual meeting of the stockholders of the Dixon Water Company was held last evening in the Guild room of St. Luke's Episcopal Church where a very excellent dinner was served at 6:30 by the ladies of St. Annes Guild after which the business meeting of the company was held. The reports given, show that approximately $17,000 was spent during 1925 for improvements on the pumping station and city service. The report also showed that 3,904 feet of four-inch mains had been added during the year and the total number of consumers now numbers 2,425. The pumps at the pumping station raised from the wells a total of 216,276,500 gallons of water for the 12 months.

The Worry Clinic

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE
CASE F-691: Hulda F., aged 37, has a common marriage problem.

"Dr. Crane," she complained, "I love my husband and I am sure he loves me, too. But he is very uncomplimentary about me when we are out in public."

"For he often refers to me as his 'old woman,' though I am slender and don't look over 30. But what also irritates me terribly is to have him call me his 'ball & chain.'"

"Dr. Crane, why do husbands use such uncomplimentary terms about their wives?"

Hulda's Retort
When Hulda's husband employs the low-brow remark that she is his "ball & chain," he is trying to protect his own social ego, even though he meanwhile deflates her pride.

For such ignorant men try to suggest they are still Don Juans!

So they pass the buck for their meekness in a social group by falling back on the crude remark that their "ball & chain" now anchors them to their home.

By intimation, however, they hope to create the illusion that they formerly were dashing Romeos, with a girl in every port.

"I WANT TO FEEL IMPORTANT" is the invisible but universal tattoo engraved on everybody's chest with our first birth cry as a baby.

So Hulda's mate really isn't trying to deflate her pride but merely hopes to insure his own male ego.

Hulda, however, should smile and utter this snappy comeback:

"Ha, he may not realize it but we wives are the real life preserver of our husbands."

"For married men live five years longer than bachelors, as proved by insurance statistics."

"And if they kiss their wives goodbye each morning, then they live seven years longer!"

Husbands often try to act kittenish when out in a mixed social gathering, for they seldom get over the old "Don Juan" complex.

And when they pass the age of 40, they often succumb to the "Ponce de Leon" complex, wherein they hope to feel young again by romancing a girl half their age.

If they then meet hesitating acceptance of their requests for dates from office secretaries who know the men are already married, they fall back on the trite excuse that "My wife doesn't understand me."

They may further advertise their lack of chivalry by describing their legal married mate as "an old battle-axe" or "my old woman" or "my ball & chain."

College graduate males in the Ponce de Leon stage show their superior vocabulary by employing such terms as "shrew" or "terragant" or describe their wife as a "Xanthippe." Girls, if you are so hard up for dates that you consort with married men, at least weed out the low-brows by the vocabulary tests just mentioned!

And beware, for married men merely inflate their erotic ego by using young women as their easy concubines.

But they usually don't love their paramours, for men ask to put a wedding ring on the woman they really love!

If you women become a married man's paramour, don't expect him to divorce his wife and desert his children, for the odds are against you!

So send for the "Tests for Sweethearts," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents, and date only the marriageable prospects!

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of the Dixon Evening Telegraph, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs, when you send for one of his booklets.)

When glamor goes to your head

EVENING GLAMOR has returned in full swing and one way to achieve it is with a flamboyantly feathered new hat. At left is a face-framing feather cap, overlaid at the crown with a halo of sweeping, iridescent feathers. Center, for more intimate, "across the table" occasions, is a jaunty derby shape, completely covered with glistening feathers and wrapped with flattering net. At right, the head-hugging turban takes on a new femininity in a version of black and white guinea feathers with a spray of tipped feathers at the crown.

Parents wink at alcoholic teens

By LEW KOCH

The adolescent romance with marijuana, amphetamines and barbiturates appears to be on the wane, but there is little cause for celebration. Drug use is still rampant, only this time the number one "drug" is alcohol.

The problem of teen-age alcoholism is widespread and serious, according to the National Institute on Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholism.

—Almost a million and a half young people between 12 and 17 have a serious drinking problem.

—One of every three high school students gets drunk at least once a month, sometimes more often. One out of every 20 gets drunk at least once a week.

—Three times the number of teen-agers are being arrested for drunken driving than were arrested 15 years ago.

—Drunkenness is now occurring among pre-teens—those between 9 and 12.

How, one wonders, has this problem come about? There are several factors at work. First, and perhaps foremost, is the collusion between parents and child which promotes alcoholism. Society in general approves of drinking while it condemns the use of other drugs.

Most parents, if offered the choice of having their teen-ager experiment with alcohol or, say, marijuana, will opt for alcohol. They use alcohol—and the use of alcohol is not against the law. In most areas of the United States, possession of marijuana still is a crime which is permanently listed on the child's record.

Both parents and law enforcement officials regard getting drunk as something "kids do," behavior which ranks in seriousness with streaking.

The second factor in the increase in teen-age alcoholism is that schools do not consider drinking as serious an offense as other forms of drug abuse. A school counselor who might take immediate steps to help an adolescent who is getting high on amphetamines may not act as swiftly with a student who repeatedly gets high on alcohol.

Parents themselves may have problems with alcohol and are reluctant to "cast the first stone." Thus they may deny that their children have a drinking problem because it would mean acknowledging their own alcohol abuse.

Together the schools and parents avoid or underplay the entire issue. Even in places where money and services are available, teens and their families are reluctant to come forward.

The Center for Family Learning in New Rochelle, N.Y., has funding from the National Institute on Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholism to combat the problem of teen-age drinking. They have devised a 12-week brief counseling project to deal with this problem. They will help any member of the family who comes to them—whether it is the teen-ager or the parent. But so far the teen-age drinkers and their drinking parents are not coming to the Center.

As Peggy Papp, a family therapist associated with the Center, points out, alcoholism tends to relay itself from generation to generation. Teen-age alcoholics will grow up to be adult alcoholics. They will marry and their children are likely to become alcoholics—and so the problem is perpetuated.

The vicious cycle of alcoholic parents—alcoholic children can be broken, says Mrs. Papp. But the first step will have to be taken by the parents. They may have to admit that the three-martini lunches and regular afterwork bar sojourns constitute drug abuse, just as surely as their teen-ager's tipping during baby-sitting jobs and stashing liquor in school lockers constitutes drug abuse.

This is one problem that is going to require honesty and vigilance on both sides of the generation gap.

... for and about women

Reader resents people who collect money from big companies

Dear Ann Landers: What is this world coming to when a woman can collect $4,300 from the Greyhound Bus Company because she got her rear end stuck in a window in the restroom on the bus?

The woman is a friend of my sister's who lives nearby. I couldn't believe it when Sis told me. Then she sent this newspaper clipping of the incident which I am passing to you, Ann.

It seems the bus swerved and the lady's posterior got stuck in the window as she tried to steady herself. She was awarded $4,300 by a jury as compensation for "anxiety and humiliation."

Does this sound like justice to you? I get burned up when I think how easy it is for some people to collect money from large companies. No wonder our insurance rates are so high.—Fuming

Dear Fume: I'm not going to second-guess a jury. They heard the evidence and I only read your letter and the newspaper clipping. But thank you for keeping me abreast of the times. (And people accuse ME of making up letters!)

Dear Ann Landers: My husband and I are at odds over the behavior of our neighbors.

Whenever we take them to dinner at an expensive restaurant they always thank us profusely and say, "Next time we must treat YOU." They have yet to pick up a check. We've been stuck at least 10 times. (They both work and money is no problem.)

On my birthday, Mrs. Neighbor baked a cake. She cut six pieces, one for each of us (and our two children) and then took the rest home. I thought it was awfully cheap and told my husband I was sick of their tacky behavior.

He enjoys this couple's company and says his philosophy is "turn the other cheek." What do you say?—Disagreement

Dear Dis: How many cheeks do you have? Also, are you well enough fixed for cash that you can continue to entertain these freeloaders?

The very next time you four go to dinner I suggest you hand the bill to The Last of the Big Spenders and say, "It's your turn. Thanks a lot." From then on, alternate. Generosity is one thing. Chumpville is something else.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband and I have been married 40 years. Recently I discovered he has been making long-distance telephone calls twice a week to another woman.

When I demanded an explanation, he said it had nothing to do with us—that she was just a "telephone lover."

Please advise me as to how I can have this "telephone service" disconnected.—Southern Belle

Dear Belle: Your husband is probably in his 60s and enjoying a belated attack of "Black Cord Fever." (Usually it hits during adolescence.)

So long as he does nothing but talk, keep the lid on and don't nag him. Should he start planning a trip out of town, I suggest an eyeball-to-eyeball confrontation, complete with details of your anxiety and unhappiness over the matter.

My hunch is that these two kids in due time will talk themselves out and disconnect on their own.

Making nine the easy way

By Oswald & James Jacoby
Oswald: "Eloene (Mrs. Gale) Griggs, the president of the American Bridge Teachers Association, has suggested that we use some hands suitable for teaching."

Jim: "Here's a good one for an advanced class. South ducks the first heart on general principles, but wins the second. The intermediate pupil has learned to attack his longest suit and to lead a high card from the shorter hand so he plays his queen of clubs. West takes his ace, clears the hearts and declarer can only collect eight tricks."

Oswald: "The advanced declarer should use the 'C of ARCH and count winners. He has six tops in the red suits and needs just three in the blacks. Then he leads his four of clubs. If West grabs this with the ace South will now have four club tricks. If West ducks, South abandons clubs, knocks out the ace of spades and has his nine tricks."

COMMUNITY NEWS

Quester's Hi-You-He-He

Mrs. Isabel Weber recently entertained Quester's Hi-You-He-He Chapter when Mrs. Dorothy Robinson gave a program on early American textiles. Many members brought their quilts and coverlets for display. Among them was a crazy quilt made of silks, velvets, and metallic cloth patches with embroidered borders around each patch; this Victorian quilt takes the place of the old calico patchwork.

The nine snowballs and pine trees coverlet of linen in blue (indigo), red and white was also on display, and an explanation of the coverlet was given by Mrs. Robinson. "It was woven with two warps that produce two fabrics interlaced at the pattern edge. One warp produces a dark pattern on a light ground, while the light warp produced a light pattern on a dark ground," she said. Double weaving was introduced by professional weavers, such as the Pennsylvania Dutch Menonites who were making the coverlets from 1725-1825. These coverlets are heavy because they are double weight, added Mrs. Robinson.

She continued, "Those who spin and weave by hand find themselves part of the continuity of history, as textile processes are among the oldest and most important inventions of man. To this continuous record, the women of America have made a great contribution. From the earliest days to well into the 19th century, Colonial women, starting with the shearings of sheep and the cuttings of flax, wove the coarse fibers into articles of beauty and utility. Early laws produced an abundance of basics for spinning and weaving. In Massachusetts it was compulsory for each colonial family to spin a given quantity of yarn every year or face a penalty of heavy fines; therefore, in each home there was the sound of the whirling spinning wheel."

"During the Civil War and the period that followed," Mrs. Robinson said, "there was a decline in handmade quilts, coverlets and samplers. The introduction of machinery in the textile industry eliminated the need for such tedious needlework. The quilt and its sentiments, along with woven coverlets and appliqued masterpieces became treasured heirlooms."

The next meeting will be in the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Kobler, 101 Academy.

Today in History

Coming Feb. 28!!!
HERITAGE EDITION
Telegraph's salute to the Bicentennial

By The Associated Press
Today is Monday, Feb. 2, the 33rd day of 1976. There are 333 days left in the year.
Today's highlight in history:
On this date in 1848, Mexico ceded a vast area to the United States for $15 million. Included was what is now Texas, New Mexico, Arizona and California.
On this date:
In 1535, the Argentine city of Buenos Aires was founded.
In 1635, New Amsterdam —

now New York — was incorporated by the Dutch.
In 1870, doctors revealed that the so-called Cardiff Giant discovered on a farm near Cardiff, N.Y., was not a petrified human being but a hoax.
In 1876, eight baseball teams banded together to organize the National League.
In 1961, the hijacked Portuguese liner Santa Maria put in at Recife, Brazil, and landed 600 passengers.

Ten years ago: President Lyndon Johnson asked Congress to authorize $524 million to promote health and education around the world.
Five years ago: Ground clashes and a surge in enemy rocket and mortar attacks brought battlefield action in South Vietnam to its highest point in 10 months.
Today's birthday: Violinist Jascha Heifetz is 75. Former movie star Bonita Branville is 53.

Thought for today: We have 40 million reasons for failure, but not a single excuse. — Rudyard Kipling, English writer, 1865-1936.
Bicentennial footnote: Two hundred years ago today, King George III decided to confer on Admiral Richard Howe exclusive command over British naval operations along the coast of the rebellious American Colonies.

Daley awaits ouster

Congressional battle underway in Chicago

CHICAGO (AP) — Down on Cottage Grove Avenue, Rep. Ralph H. Metcalfe is fighting for his political life.

Five miles uptown, at Chicago's somber City Hall, Richard J. Daley awaits with contentment the ouster of his ex-friend, Metcalfe, from Congress.

The battle of the South Side is on—one of two key congressional primary races this year in the northeastern corner of Illinois.

The other is a three-way Republican battle in the 10th District in Chicago's fashionable and politically volatile northern suburbs.

In the 10th, until recently a prime piece of Republican real estate, the winner will face incumbent Democrat Abner J. Mikva in November and the seat should be up for grabs.

But in the 1st, which takes in what one demographer calls "the largest black ghetto in the nation, bigger than Harlem or Bedford-Stuyvesant," the winner of the Democratic primary on March 16 may safely make airline reservations to Washington on March 17.

Ralph Metcalfe spent 15 years in the Daley camp, both as alderman and committeeman of the 3rd Ward. When the legendary William Dawson retired from the congressional seat, the mayor tapped the loyal Metcalfe, an Olympic track star of the 1930s.

Today, Metcalfe declares that Daley "presides over an obscene political dictatorship." Political divorce proceedings between the mayor and the congressman became public two years ago after two South Side dentists were beaten by police. Metcalfe and the Rev. Jesse L. Jackson, leader of Operation PUSH, opened a drive against police brutality that embarrassed City Hall, and they demanded a meeting with Daley in the black community. The invitation was declined.

Last year, Metcalfe endorsed the mayor's Democratic primary opponent, former Alderman William S. Singer, a leader of the Chicago independent movement, which has won a handful of City Council seats from the Daleyites. Singer was trounced.

This year, Daley's precinct army is working for Erwin France, a 37-year-old former Model Cities director who, unlike most organization candidates, climbed to prominence as an administrator and not through the clubhouse maneuverings of Chicago ward politics.

Metcalfe remains 3rd Ward committeeman but the patronage jobs that once fell to him as the mayor's vassal have been transferred to 3rd Ward Alderman Tyrone Kenner, who also is challenging Metcalfe in the committeeman election March 16.

France sees his ties to Daley as an asset. "Black people have grown up politically," he says. "They don't see some candidates as angels and others as devils. They want someone who can do something for this district. As a regular Democrat, I can do more for this district."

France also says: "I'm not sure that in the long run the re-election of Metcalfe is really in the best interests of black people. I'm not sure that the people supporting him are really interested in the welfare of black people."

Deserted by a conservatively estimated two-thirds of his precinct captains, who generally go where the jobs go, Metcalfe has turned for organizational talent to the Chicago independent movement.

The independents have strength in the 5th Ward precincts around the University of Chicago and in the maverick Alderman William Cousins' 8th Ward. They also beat the mayor's forces out of the 2nd Ward City Council seat in 1969, a gain erased when the anti-organization champion vanished with $200,000 in jobs-for-blacks funds and later was arrested, flat broke, at the low-ball table in a Gardena, Calif., poker parlor.

Pockets of independent strength exist elsewhere in the district, even in the 20th Ward, where powerful state Senate President Cecil A. Partee is committeeman.

Mikva, a Daley antagonist who once held a South Side congressional seat, was reappointed in 1971 by a pro-Daley legislature into the same district with Metcalfe. He moved to north suburban Evanston and narrowly lost to Republican Samuel Young in the 10th District in 1972 and then won the rematch.

Young, a Northfield attorney, is trying to make a comeback this year but faces primary opposition from youthful attorney Dan Hales, a former counsel to the Illinois Conservative Union, and state Sen. John Nimrod of Skokie.

Nimrod should take Niles Township, where he is the committeeman, but is believed to be trailing badly elsewhere. Young is the favorite, but, because of a lackluster campaign style, is considered vulnerable to the well-organized and financed Hales, who is backed by the same conservative Republican faction that launched U.S. Rep. Philip M. Crane.

"Sam's biggest handicap is convincing people that he can run an effective campaign," says a party official who backs Young. "But I think he is doing it. He's got a strong committee this time and it's making him do the right thing. They sat down with him and said we would work in this campaign but only on the condition that he would listen to their advice and follow it. Now a number of efforts are being made to improve Sam Young as a candidate."

Hales recently showed strength by getting the endorsement of the party organization in New Trier Township, which takes in such affluent lakefront suburbs as Winnetka and Kenilworth. Although he is believed to be running second districtwide, some observers say his organizational strength and crisp campaign style will propel him past Young at the finale of the campaign.

A number of other congressional primary contests are being held in Chicago and suburbs; but most either are fairly well settled or mean little because the winner will face long odds against a well-entrenched incumbent in November.

In the 3rd District, taking in Thornton, Worth and Calumet townships plus chunks of three far South Side wards, South Holland Village Atty. Ronald Buikema is believed to hold a commanding lead over former state Rep. Carl "Clean Water" Klein. Suburban businessmen Glen John Allred and Robert C. Gorman also are on the ballot.

Klein, who was an assistant secretary of the interior for water pollution under Walter J. Hickel, is conceding nothing: "I didn't get into this thing to lose."

But Republican observers say the clock is ticking for Klein as he falls further and further behind Buikema in financing and organization.

The district was solidly Republican until 1974 when Democrat Martin Russo rode a Watergate tide to a victory over Rep. Robert Hanrahan. It could change hands again this fall.

Other races:

SECOND DISTRICT: Chicagoans laughed when a pop tune called "The East Side of Chicago" hit the charts. The East Side is under Lake Michigan, they said. Actually, the East Side is in U.S. Rep Morgan Murphy's congressional district. This area of steel mills and frame homes huddled below the Chicago Skyway is organization turf. So is most of the district. Andrew Tucker, an aide to Gov. Daniel Walker, is on the Democratic primary ballot. "He can win against Murphy," says an independent organizer, "if the revolution comes in March, as scheduled. Otherwise, forget it."

SIXTH DISTRICT: Marilyn D. Clancy, a leader in several women's liberation groups, has regular Democratic support in this west suburban district. Businessman R.G. Patrick Logan is making a fight of it. The winner most likely will be swamped by Republican incumbent Henry J. Hyde.

EIGHTH DISTRICT: State Rep. Charles Fleck, 33rd Ward Republican committeeman, knows he can never beat incumbent Democrat Daniel J. Rostenkowski out of this safe-for-the-Daley organization congressional seat. But Fleck wanted to show the GOP flag anyway and, appropriately, found his candidate in a professional undertaker, John F. Urbazewski, who trained for the job by running on the 1974 Republican "suicide squad" for a city seat on the Cook County Board. No one knew that political unknown Carl Lodico also would file, thus creating another meaningless primary contest.

ELEVENTH DISTRICT: Perennial candidate Mitchell G. Zadrozny is the Republican organization candidate in this Northwest Side district, although Cook County Chairman Lou Kasper says: "I wouldn't exactly say he has the inside track." Also in the running are Daniel C. Reber, a political science professor at Loop College, and retired police Sgt. Edward D. Kelly. The winner gets to go up against veteran U.S. Rep. Frank Annunzio and the same well-tooled Democratic precinct apparatus that crushed popular Republican John Hoellen in the 1975 mayoral and aldermanic elections.

THIRTEENTH DISTRICT: Antioch attorney James Lumber, well-known in the district and backed by the regular Democratic organization, should have no trouble with newcomer James J. Cummings in this district based mainly in Lake County. But he will face all sorts of trouble with incumbent Republican Robert McClory, come November.

FOURTEENTH DISTRICT: A four-way Democratic race in this DuPage County district features a woman labor union official, Marie Agnes Fee; a Chicago public relations man, Winfield Green; a political newcomer, Nicholas Thomas, and a former state central committeewoman, Romaine Troost.

Bronx housewife enters law school at 49

Editor's Note: Older women are going back to work. The divorce rate is soaring. Single-parent (male or female) families are growing in numbers and gaining acceptance. Government statistics show the changes clearly. More and more people, especially women, are making dramatic lifestyle changes which often create enough stress and emotional turmoil within their families to break them apart. Here is the first of four portraits of people who decided to change their lives in midstream.

By VICTORIA GRAHAM
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — "I was just a little Bronx housewife. I was amazed I could have such a big thought," says Pauline McDermott, who "started a new life" and entered law school at the age of 49.

"I didn't just want a job. I wanted a career, something that would mean something," says Mrs. McDermott, a grandmother who started law school last August.

"It was my decision, for me, by me and nobody else. Nobody told me or expected me to do it," she says. "Realizing I could really change my life was a little like having a heart attack."

"I did it. Wow!"
"It's a real shifting of gears and mental gymnastics I go through about feeling guilty and making demands on my husband," she says. "It's nonsense, but I can't help feeling that I'm not doing what I should, which is cleaning house. He does it all."

"I want to tell him 'Thank you, thank you. You're so marvelous. You even dusted.' Wow!"

Pauline had been married more than 20 years and had dropped out of school to put her husband through school. "It had never occurred to me that I might do something, too," she says.

She had three children. She worked as a teacher's assistant, welfare counselor and did administrative charity work. She went to night school and earned a degree in philosophy.

"Mostly, I was a housewife in the Bronx. I wasn't happy. I needed freedom and I needed out," she says.

In 1968, she got a divorce and supported herself despite her husband's prediction that she couldn't survive alone. In 1971, she married David McDermott, editor-in-chief of the book division of the American Management Association.

She is small, enthusiastic and talkative, smiling and laughing, explaining and gesturing, thrilled and pleased with herself. Still a little amazed at her new life.

With her long auburn hair, blue jeans and sneakers she doesn't look like a grandmother who's turned on by property law.

David, 43, is a small, quiet and smiling man. He seems serene with himself and pleased for his wife. While she talks, he sits back, stroking Emily the cat. It's her show, and he's glad to help. It's really no sacrifice for him.

After they were married, David asked Pauline what she really wanted to do.

She decided on law school, and she was accepted last June at Hofstra Law School in Hempstead, N.Y.

Together, they changed their lives for her.

They sold their $385-a-month co-op in Manhattan. They moved into a modest $240-a-month apartment in Queens, midway between her school and his office. They turned one bedroom into her study.

She left her plants behind and worried at first about decorating the new apartment. "Then I decided I do not want to build a nest. I will do just what is necessary, but beyond that, nothing should interfere or distract me," she says.

Although she hadn't driven a car in years, they bought a car for her to commute to school.

She borrowed money for the $3,300-a-year tuition.

David does all the housework, and Pauline hasn't cooked a real meal since August.

"My husband has deprived me of my last excuse, my last cop-out," she says with a laugh.

"My children are grown. We've worked everything out. I can't say I shouldn't go to law school because I have to do the housework or my husband needs me at home."

"Sometimes I think: 'Oh, I'm burdening you. What if I fail? What if I can't get a job? What if you're stuck with a debt?' It's up to me. I have no one to blame."

David does the housekeeping: cooking, cleaning, shopping, laundry, and errands.

"I think this is wonderful for Pauline," David says. "I don't think anyone should be held back. What else could I be doing? It's not that hard. Of course, Pauline's idea of housekeeping and mine are rather different." They laugh.

"One of my friends says I'm crazy to disrupt my life," he says. "But I think it's a good compromise. My biggest sacrifice is riding the subway."

Pauline says her friends are happy for her. Her mother, now in a rest home, told her with some amazement: "I never knew you were so smart."

"Most of the kids in my classes accept me," Pauline says. "A few don't and a few are bewildered. On the day my granddaughter was born, I was in school and very excited."

"One student asked me: 'How old are you, anyway?' When I told him, all he could say was, 'Astounding.'"

"I feel my life is an adventure now. I'm out in the world and thrilled by things that others take for granted. I feel I'm seeing things for the first time."

Unions attack Bell increase

CHICAGO (AP) — A coalition of Chicago-area labor unions has attacked the Illinois Bell Telephone Co.'s latest proposed rate increase, charging that Bell already has overcharged its customers millions of dollars and will use the rate hike to increase unemployment.

Coalition president Harry E. Conlon, vice president of Local 245 of the Graphic Art's Union, said Friday the coalition includes 53 labor leaders from 26 Chicago-area unions.

Conlon told a news conference the request pending before the Illinois Commerce Commission "amounts to an unjustified tax on wages and production." Conlon also said the increase, if granted, could result in the laying off of as many as 40 per cent of Illinois Bell's operators.

He said part of Illinois Bell's request is an increase in the cost of directory-assistance calls from 10 to 20 cents, a move which could sharply reduce the number of such calls and result in operator layoffs.

Illinois Bell was quick to challenge Conlon's comments.

A statement issued by company officials said, "It's hard to understand this attack on our request for a much-needed increase in rates."

A third car involved, driven by James K. Greenfield, 64, Rt. 1, Egan, stopped to assist when a car behind his, driven by Johnny R. Richards, 19, Darlington, Wis., struck Greenfield's car. Impact from the second collision sent the Greenfield car into another auto, operated by Leonard Wagner, 41, Leaf River.

Will propose training for auxiliary deputies

OREGON— A new law requiring special training for auxiliary sheriff's deputies is in effect and Sheriff Jerry Brooks says he will propose a training schedule to the Ogle County Board Feb. 10.
The law states auxiliary deputies shall not carry firearms except with the permission of the sheriff, while in uniform and in performance of their duties. They must first receive a course in the use of weapons and the course shall be the same training that is required for full-time peace officers.
The new law does not affect the Ogle County Sheriff's deputy reserves since Sheriff Brooks enacted similar rules and regulations for his department when he first took office in 1970.
Brooks said, "Most sheriffs I know have supported this legislation and it will bring more professionalism in sheriff's departments by doing away with the old system of handing out deputy cards to preferred persons."

Says Howlett supported scrap-iron bill

CHICAGO (AP) — Secretary of State Michael J. Howlett threw his support behind legislation which would have benefited a Chicago steel firm from which he drew $15,000 a year as a vice president and consultant, according to the Chicago Sun-Times.

The Sun-Times said in its Sunday editions that state records showed Howlett gave his personal endorsement to scrap-iron legislation which passed the Illinois House in May and the Senate in June, though Gov. Daniel Walker vetoed the measure.

However, records revealed that Howlett also supported unsuccessful efforts to override the governor's veto, the newspaper reported.

Howlett, who will battle Walker for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination in the March 16 primary, denied supporting the bill and contends his affiliation with Sun Steel Co. of Chicago Heights is not a conflict of interest.

The Chicago Daily News had disclosed in its weekend editions that Howlett "acknowledged that since 1961 he has been paid $15,000 a year as a vice president" of the firm.

In an interview, the Sun-Times said, Howlett denied taking a stand on the scrap-iron bill or discussing it with legislators.

"I never talked to any member of the legislature about it, I never talked to the scrap-iron institute, which supported it.... I have no interest in the scrap-iron business. Sun Steel is a warehouse operation. It warehouses the steel and cuts it into size for the steel industry," said Howlett.

However, the newspaper reported, Howlett's denial is in conflict with an official transcript of a Senate debate which quotes Sen. Philip Rock, D-Chicago, as saying he discussed the legislation with Howlett.

The Sun-Times said that during the override debate, confusion over whether Howlett backed the legislation arose when Rock said:

"And I have the accord of the secretary of state...to make it perfectly clear as has been made clear in 36 other states that his requirement was never intended to cover those in the business of processing."

The Sun-Times said Sen. Frank M. Ozinga, R-Evergreen Park, then asked: "Sen. Rock, is this not the same bill that at the time that it was up in the Senate was put on postponed consideration to receive an answer from the secretary of state as to whether or not he went along with this bill?"

Rock replied, "That is correct, and the answer from the secretary was at that time, yes."

Ozinga then said he had received word from Howlett's office that the secretary of state opposed the bill, the newspaper said.

Rock then responded, "Well, I...I don't know where you got your word from. I have spoken with Michael J. Howlett, who is in fact the secretary of state."

Howlett has been quoted as saying that should he beat Walker and go on to win the general election in November, he will resign his post with Sun Steel because he feels "it would be more difficult to guard against a conflict of interest," as governor.

Dance company returns for SVC arts festival

The nationally known Margot Grimmer American Dance Company will return to Sauk Valley College to perform the Bicentennial Ballet, "American Export," at the Third Annual Festival of the Arts being sponsored by the Sauk Area Arts Council at 4 p.m. Feb. 15 at the college.

Mrs. Milly Cole, festival coordinator, said "American Export," was choreographed by Grimmer and premiered on the Bob Hope Show live in the Milwaukee Auditorium on Sept. 26, 1975. According to the Milwaukee Journal, "Margot Grimmer was a sensation as a dancer," and the Milwaukee Sentinel, "Margot Grimmer, a dynamic burst of excitement and energy, wowed the audience with spectacular turns and leaps."

The ballet will hold its Chicago area premiere on June 5 at the National College of Education in Evanston and has been selected for presentation at the 1976 Bicentennial celebration in Washington, D.C., sponsored by the Washington Post newspaper.

The American Dance Company's first performances in 1972 of the Rock Ballet, "In - A - Gadda - Da - Vida," received excellent reviews from the critics and the ballet, "Four Quartets," which included a section of the Watergate scandal, was accorded critical acclaim by the Washington Post.

Four ballets have been awarded grants from the Illinois Arts Council and the National Endowment for the Arts in Washington, D.C. Since the company's inception in September of 1972, the dancers have appeared in over 50 performances, which has included a state tour of universities and colleges sponsored by the Illinois Arts Council.

The local Arts Festival, which will run from Feb. 13-15 at SVC, is sponsored by the Sauk Area Arts Council, a non-profit organization designed to promote the arts and crafts in the SVC area. Grimmer's troupe first performed at SVC during the festival last year.

Changing role of women to be discussed at SVC

The changing role of women in society will be the topic of a series of films and discussion sessions being sponsored during the month of February by the Women's Interest Group at Sauk Valley College. Each of these sessions will be held in Room 2K2 at SVC.

Claire Buschmann, student activities counselor, said the first in this series will be presented Wednesday at 1 p.m., and again Thursday at 11 a.m. The program is entitled "The Genius of American Women."

It will illustrate the importance of women in the development of American civilization and will trace the history of women and "women's roles" within a social framework.

The second program, scheduled Feb. 11 at 1 p.m., will explore the social and historic conditions of women in America. The discussion content will emphasize the brilliance and variety of artistic and literary work created by American women.

Buschmann said the Women's Interest Group is sponsoring these programs in an effort to point out the creative influence of women in American history—influences which have often been overlooked, taken for granted, or ignored.

Additional film presentations and discussions along these lines which have not yet been scheduled will include "Masculinity and Femininity" and "Rape: the Savage Crime." The Women's Interest Group invites any one in the SVC area who is interested in the topics to attend these free sessions.

Chuckling a Legend

Legend says that animals like this fellow will peek out of their burrows today to predict the weather for the coming six weeks. But the truth is that groundhogs pay very little attention to the calendar and may not come out of hibernation until as late as March. And when they do, the weather will be one of the last things to concern them. They will emerge to seek food and to find their mates. The groundhog—or woodchuck—is the largest member of the squirrel family. It is basically a vegetarian and grows to a little over two feet long, including its bushy tail.

DO YOU KNOW—According to the legend, what will happen if the groundhog sees his shadow today?

Alcohol: The new teen-age turn-on

Parents look for signs of problem drinking

By ALTON BLAKESLEE and BRIAN SULLIVAN
SIXTH IN A SERIES

She is 17 and she comes home tipsy. Once, perhaps a few times.

Or her brother, also a teen-ager, comes home obviously drunk. Perhaps a few times.

Such events do not mean a teen-ager is walking along the path to alcoholism, authorities say. It could be no more than the expected experimentation with alcohol, drugs, cars or other challenges coming into their lives.

Repeated occasions like those, however, and heavy and continued drinking, are something else, often the signal from a run-away calling for help.

Alcohol may provide an escape from something bothering the adolescent, as it does for adults. It may involve school, home, parents, his or her social or personal life, a sense of achievement or lack of it, concern over some real or fancied physical or facial imperfection.

Alcohol becomes a way to relieve the pain or reality, or alcohol is used to make the adolescent feel more competent in dealing with his confusing life.

What are some cautionary signs of difficulty ahead? Withdrawal from family life can be one. The teen-ager may become more secretive, spending more time alone. There may be sudden, rather drastic personality changes, or changes in behavior. School grades may drop, or interest lost in school, sports, or in accustomed activities. Proneness to accidents could be a sign of loss of control caused by alcohol.

Teen-agers who drink can, like other people, become drunk. However, says Dr. Frank Seixas of the National Council on Alcoholism, as they build up tolerance to alcohol, they can take larger amounts of alcohol and not show it. One cannot always count on the smell of alcohol on the breath. Alcohol itself has no odor, and vodka, with few additives in it, has correspondingly little odor. Chlorophyll products may disguise the odor of alcoholic beverages.

"Parents mustn't become jumpy and accuse the teen-ager of having been drunk because he or she didn't come home once, as had been promised," Dr. Seixas says.

Warning signals that alcohol is being abused could also be signals of other problems, mainly psychological or reflex-tions of doubts accompanying adolescence. Alcohol may not be the root cause of an adolescent's sudden preference to spend much more time alone.

But if signals do seem to point to possible abuse of alcohol, it is time for parents to try to help.

Research is under way to learn how better to understand abuse of alcohol, and answers to it.

Do people genetically inherit a predisposition to abuse it? Evidence is accumulating that in some individuals, alcoholism is a biological and hereditary phenomenon more than something resulting from environmental factors, says Dr. Seixas. It just seems easier for some people to become alcoholics.

Alcoholism is "probably the most complicated health problem of all," says Dr. Patricia O'Gorman of the NCA. "We need to have accurate information, and informed attitudes. There may be biological reasons for alcoholism. We just don't know yet."

Research may also point the way to detecting, fairly early, the youngster who is heading into real trouble from alcohol, and show how to teach children to drink safely, in moderation.

Kemp hits 28 points in win

Dixon beats St. Bede

By JOE BRADY
Telegraph Sports Writer

PERU— John Kemp got Dixon's first six points, here, Saturday night and went on to finish the contest with 28 markers as the Dukes defeated a fast St. Bede's team, 79-72.

Kemp suffered a cold third quarter, but contributed to the winning cause with 12 field goals and four free throws for the game's high scoring honors.

The Dukes led throughout the game, until 4:01 in the fourth quarter when the Bruins tied the score and appeared to be gaining momentum. Dixon hit 15 of 16 free throws in the closing minutes to ice its eighth victory of the season.

The Dukes used an effective zone defense throughout most of the game, until midway through the third quarter when the Bruin's Brian Maloney and Ray Renkosik began gaining penetration and hitting key baskets. Maloney was St. Bede's top-point man with 17 markers, while Renkosik added 16.

Bruin guard Matt McClellan, who had been averaging 30 points a game going into the contest, was held to 15 points. McClellan, Maloney and Renkosik all left the game with five personal fouls in the hectic fourth quarter. Dixon's ball control, free-throw shooting, and sticky defense proved to be St. Bede's downfall.

Guy Price came off the bench to play an excellent game, scoring 13 points and collecting clutch rebounds. Price saw action in his second game since returning from an ankle injury in November.

The Dukes, without injured Randy Donegan, gave sophomore Tom Evett a starting nod. Evett had a cold shooting night and managed to score only two points, while committing three personal fouls. Donegan suffered a sprained ankle against Kewanee last Friday, and is not expected to be back in action for about a week.

Doug Hipple hit some pressure free throws in the fourth quarter, in addition to his four field goals. Doug ended the game with 14 points, while contributing a good defensive game to the winning cause. Hipple's running mate at guard, Dave Zinnen, sank seven free throws and a field goal for nine points.

John Ortgiesen played a super game, as he aided in fouling out Maloney and Renkosik. The senior forward had seven points for the game, but his hustling floor game made him stand out among both teams. Greg Weigle rounded out the scoring with six points.

The Dukes, now 8-9 for the season, will host the Ottawa Pirates Friday night at Lancaster Gymnasium. The sophomore game will start at 6:30, with the varsity contest slated for 8 p.m.

PERU— The St. Bede Cubs ended the Dixon Dukelets' six-game winning streak, here, Saturday with a 79-70 victory in a high-scoring non-conference game.

The winners, who now sport a 12-3 season record, used a hustling full-court man-to-man pressure defense that caused 18 Dixon turnovers— with 10 of them coming in the second quarter. St. Bede committed only 12 mistakes. Coach Ted Trulock expressed "you must be disappointed when your sophomore team scores 70 points in 28 minutes and you still get beat. That many points should win any sophomore game. We tried many different defenses but we failed to concentrate and play good defensive basketball."

"They hit 60 per cent of their shots but we made them look good because we failed to work on defense— any boy can score nowadays if you just stand and watch him shoot. I know that at least 12 of their baskets were lay-ups and lay-ups will always help your shooting percentage. During our win streak we used pressure defense to pull a couple of wins through— I hope we learned a lesson Saturday night that will help us in the tough games ahead."

Dan Howell paced the Dukelets in scoring with 19 points and teammate Joe Brady was close behind with 16. Paul Smith slipped into double figures with 10 points and led his team in rebounding with 11. The Dixon team hit a fine 48 per cent of its shots from the field and 66 per cent at the free-throw line.

The Dukelets entertain Ottawa Friday night at Lancaster Gym in a "key" NCIC Conference game. Dixon is one game off first place and is tied with La Salle-Peru and Ottawa for second place— all with identical 5-2 records.

Amboy upsets Riverdale 46-41

ALL EYES move toward the basket as Greg Esgar lets loose with a shot in fourth-period action. The attempt made it through as Amboy increased its lead to 31-27. The Clippers gained a "super win" of 46-41 over the Riverdale Rams. Esgar collected 12 points in the win. (Telegraph Photo)

Telegraph Sports Writer
AMBOY — "This is the highlight of the season so far for us," stated Amboy head coach Gary Croegaert in making what has to be the understatement of this year's basketball season. Croegaert made the comment after witnessing his Clippers upset the fifth-ranked Riverdale Rams 46-41, here, Saturday evening in a Three Rivers conference contest before a jammed packed and highly excited crowd.

"It is a super win." And so it is as Amboy breaks Riverdale's unbeaten record of 18-0 and 9-0 in conference and undoubtedly sends the Rams down some in the class A standings.

The story of the game developed in the second half when Amboy took control on the boards and hit a pair of hot scoring streaks that marked the end of the visiting Rams. Clipper junior center Joe Bothe took charge both on offense and defense in the final two periods, pulling down key rebounds and filtering through mighty big buckets.

The first half was exciting as far as points scored and their closeness in going through, but neither of the teams really displayed any awesome offense. Amboy controlled the leads after both the first and second quarters, but by small margins.

Don Johnson put the Rams on the board initially with a lay-up at 7:46. Amboy junior forward Randy Blackburn pumped a 10-foot baseline jumper in to knot the score seconds later. Kevin Kenady pushed the visitors back into the lead with a long shot before Blackburn connected on a pair of free throws at 4:21 that broke a three-minute scoreless span for the hosts.

Kenady, who led all Riverdale scorers with 16 markers, dropped a layup in to boost the Rams back into the lead at 4:02 as the swift action continued. Blackburn hit again, this time on a 15-footer, to stalemate it at six.

Rams' forward Rob Hetz grabbed an offensive rebound and dumped it in to give his team the advantage late in the period. The offensive rebound bucket came as a change for the Rams in the period as most of their shots were from way out. Both defenses forced outside shots the first half, while the Clippers continued with their tough pressure underneath throughout the second half in making the Rams consistently fire away from 15 and 20 feet out.

Bothe sunk a pair of charity tosses at 1:29 to knot the score at eight before — guess who? — Blackburn connected on two free throws with :30 left to push the hosts into a 10-8 lead that stood up at the end of the quarter. Blackburn hit for eight of the 10 markers in the period, although, ironically, they were the only points the Clipper netted all night.

Amboy grabbed a three point margin in the opening seconds of the second period when Bothe potted a 10-foot in the lane jumper. The Rams roared right back on a free throw and a 15-footer from the hands of Mark Foster. The Clippers kept coming and nabbed a five-point lead at 16-11 on a hook by Bothe and an offensive bucket by senior guard Greg Esgar.

Esgar picked up in the second period where Blackburn left off in the first in netting six consecutive points in the last five minutes of the half that allowed Amboy to control the half-time lead. Riverdale took a brief lead of 17-16 at 3:27 on two buckets from Hetz and an offensive basket by Kenady but the efforts of Esgar soon overtook the margin. Amboy junior guard Brian Dempsey hit for two markers at :10 on a nice jumper in the lane to give the hosts a 22-21 advantage and counter a Foster bucket seconds earlier that had given the Rams their third short lead of the first half.

"We did not do too well in the first half," recounted Croegaert. "We did not check well on the boards. This is what kept them in the game. At half I told the guys that we have to get tougher on the boards, and we did."

Bothe came on strong in the second half, both on the boards and scoringwise. The big center pulled down 11 rebounds on the night, eight defensive and some key ones in the fourth quarter when the Rams threatened to come back.

Amboy set up a deliberate-type of offense in the opening minutes of the third quarter. For over a minute and a half, the Clippers were satisfied with just passing the ball around and not going even near the bucket. At 5:20 senior forward Steve Powers was fouled and pumped one charity toss through.

On the second attempt Powers failed to swish it, but Bothe came up with one of his three offensive rebounds and turned it into two points and was fouled on top of it. The junior tossed the free throw through as Amboy reeled off four quick points in five seconds and grabbed a 26-21 lead.

At 3:54 Bothe decided it was time for another three-point play and connected for the markers as Amboy started to pull away 29-21. Kenady finally put the Rams on the board at 3:01 on a 15-footer and then repeated the shot a minute to cut the margin to four at 29-25. Hetz layed one in as a determined Rams' squad pulled within a bucket at 29-27 through three periods.

With a low score, the caliber of the two teams on the court, the super enthusiastic crowd, so noisy they could blow a guy's eardrum to bits, and just the way the game had progressed through three periods, it looked like it would be a whale of a fourth quarter.

But Amboy struck hard in the opening three minutes on pouring in 10 straight points and taking a 12-point advantage at 39-27. Esgar hit for two baskets and a pair of free throws in the scoring spree while Bothe and Powers collected a bucket.

Riverdale, without the services of its second leading scorer, Rich Nitz, who is out with a sprained ankle, just would not lay down and die. The Rams displayed why they were ranked fifth in the state in class A and why they had captured their first 18 games of the season as they dropped 14 markers in the final four minutes to pull close. Foster picked up three buckets and Kenady two in the comeback attempt that fell short due to the accurate free throw shooting of Dempsey.

In the last :56 Dempsey pushed five of six charity tosses through the nets to clinch it at 46-41 and give Croegaert one of his biggest wins at Amboy.

"We executed well tonight," stated Croegaert. "We were really prepared for the game. I have to give a lot of credit to my assistant coaches for the fine work they did on the scouting reports. We knew exactly what was coming."

"Emotionally, we were more ready for this game than any other one this season. We lost to Riverdale up there by three points and we felt things would be different back here in Amboy."

"The team's poise is exceptional for a young club. Their poise under pressure is excellent. Esgar again showed the good leadership he has. He makes things happen on the court."

"Bothe leads by example. He had a great second half, especially on the boards. He is a 'big game player' and a super basketball player when the pressure is on. We feel he is definitely all-state material."

Bothe paced all Clipper scorers with 16 markers while Esgar added 12. Kenady pushed 16 through for the Rams while Foster picked up 11 and Hetz 10. Amboy committed only nine miscues on the night, a key factor in the precious win. The hosts grabbed 26 rebounds and shot for a nice 43 per cent, connecting on 15 of 36 field goal attempts.

Amboy travels to Putnam County Tuesday evening in a non-conference contest against the Panthers. The Clippers will try to improve on their 13-6 overall record. Amboy holds a third-place Three Rivers conference mark of 7-3.

JOE BOTHE puts in an offensive rebound after a missed Steve Powers free throw in early third-quarter action of the Amboy-Riverdale Conference contest at Amboy Saturday night. Bothe was fouled on the shot and turned it into a three-point play as Amboy grabbed a 26-21 advantage en route to a 46-41 upset victory over the previously unbeaten fifth-ranked Rams. Bothe led Amboy with 16 points and came up with key rebounds in the big win. (Telegraph Photo)

Redmen win

CLINTON—Steve Hook sank a pair of free throws with :01 remaining in the game and lifted the Sauk Valley Redmen into an exciting 75-74 non-conference win over the Clinton Huskers, here, Saturday night. The close victory ups Sauk's season record to 14-8.

Clinton rolled early grabbing leads of as much as 10 points in the first half before Sauk regained its poise and made a late comeback that allowed the visitors to pull within one at 37-36 at the end of the initial 20 minutes. The key for Clinton in the first half was its ability to outbreast Sauk by a considerable margin.

According to Frank Palumbo, Sauk Valley coach, the difference in the game occurred in the first five minutes of the second half when the Redmen jumped on Clinton and grabbed a five point lead. Throughout the rest of the game the score saw-sawed until Sauk took a one-point lead with :09 left. The Redmen also had possession of the ball so the out-look seemed rosy.

But on the in-bounds pass Sauk turned it over and Clinton turned the miscue into a bucket with :03 left and Sauk found itself down 74-73. After a time out the Redmen received a break when Hook was fouled at :01 and coolly sunk the two free throws to give the Redmen a nervous victory.

"We're quite thankful for the win," commented Palumbo. "It has been a tough week for us but we came out with three wins."

"Mike Friedlein had another fine game for us as did Stan Gaffey. Stan came in midway through the second half and did a fine job. Of course, Hook was the hero."

Friedlein led all scorers with 24 markers while a trio of Redmen finished in the double figures column. Tim Granow pumped in 14 markers, Hook added 12 and Gaffey 11. Dudley Biggs pushed 20 points through for Clinton while Melvin Mobley hit for 16.

Sauk entertains Black Hawk Thursday evening in an Arrowhead conference contest. The Redmen hold a 4-3 conference ledger.

The Doctor Says:

Put pressure on dairy industry

By LAWRENCE LAMB, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB—I am a black woman and I'm writing to you in desperation. Both my husband and I have trouble with milk and milk products. I read your column and know we both have lactose intolerance. Even one glass of milk or if I use too much in cooking really makes us both as sick as if we had been poisoned.

If I eat ice cream, cottage cheese, drink milk or use milk gravy, I get so distended that I just lie on my back and suffer. For years I was told that I was nervous but I learned that it was milk intolerance.

What are black people supposed to do? I understand 90 per cent of us have this problem and so do Mexicans and other minority groups. We are denied the right to a balanced diet because we can't use milk products. I understand that the milk sugar can be treated with an enzyme so it won't cause these problems and people can use this treated milk without getting sick.

Why won't the dairy industry provide us with milk products we can use without getting sick? Is it discrimination because we are black? If there were more black people or other minority people running the dairy industry we would all be able to use milk without getting sick. Isn't there something that can be done to make the dairies provide us with milk we can use?

DEAR READER—I understand your distress but I don't think it is really discrimination. There are 35 million whites as well as over 24 million blacks in the United States with this problem. There is a market potential of about 60 million—or one in four of the total population for such products.

It is true that it is cheap to produce a usable product. Time magazine wrote a blurb on this a year ago noting that the process combined with pasteurization could be done "at a cost of less than a penny a quart." At the same time, Newsweek stated "for only a few cents a quart."

Nearly one out of four Americans is denied the main source of calcium in his diet because he can't use much milk or milk products because of this.

In a recent article in the New England Journal of Medicine (May 29, 1975), doctors from Johns Hopkins Medical Center point out that about two-thirds of people with this problem get sick on as little as one glass of milk a day.

There is some activity within the dairy industry about this problem—but no readily available product as yet and you have a good reason to ask why. So do the many dairy farmers who depend on the industry to market their products. A satisfactory product that seems available cheaply could increase the present market for dairy products by 25 per cent.

Because of the high incidence of this problem in minority groups, I agree that leaders of such groups should talk to the dairy industry rather firmly about this. If they are successful about 35 million whites would appreciate it too. (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

People in the news

WEATHERFORD, Okla. (AP) — Astronaut Thomas P. Stafford is Weatherford's favorite son, but residents along the street named after him say they like the old name better.

George Wilkinson, the city administrator, said 117 persons living on Tom Stafford Avenue have signed a petition asking the street's name to be changed back to Washita Avenue.

The City Council renamed the street last July after Stafford completed his mission as the American commander of the Apollo-Soyuz space rendezvous. The astronaut, who spent much of his youth working on nearby farms, came to town for a special tribute.

SEATTLE (AP) — Dr. John Berberich is a clinical psychologist — and father confessor — to 1,000 policemen. Berberich, the Seattle Police Department's first full-time psychologist, says he hopes to help police cope with the special stresses of their jobs.

"I have a great interest in how the criminal justice system works and its seeming lack of effectiveness in cutting back crime," Berberich says, explaining why he joined the force.

Based on 1975 Road & Track magazine tests of 212 cars:

The best car in the world for under $3500.

IT'S NOT TOYOTA. IT'S NOT DATSUN. IT'S NOT VEGA. IT'S NOT PINTO. IT'S NOT FIAT. IT'S NOT HONDA.

The Volkswagen Rabbit was picked to be the best car in the world for under $3500 for the right reasons.

Handling, acceleration, ride, comfort, space, luggage capacity, brakes, durability, reliability—all these entered into the selection.

We at Volkswagen are proud to take our place next to Mercedes-Benz and the other fine cars chosen "The Best."

39 mpg on the highway, 25 in the city, is another reason the Rabbit was picked. The Rabbit, with stick shift, got that mileage in 1976 EPA tests. (The mileage you get can vary, depending on how and where you drive, optional equipment, and the condition of your car.)

Food guide sparks debate

ROME (AP) — Michelin's recently published wine and food guide for Italy has spoiled appetites and sparked debate in Italian culinary circles that take pride in the country's "otima" — ultimate — class of cooking.

The French tiremaker's 1976 red guide failed to find a single Italian restaurant worthy of a three-star rating and gave only one eatery south of Florence — a restaurant in the Sicilian capital of Palermo — the two stars that signify excellent cooking worth a special stop.

The guide gave one star, meaning "good cooking in its class," to 200 establishments and two stars to 11 others.

"Maybe their thinking is too French," said one restaurateur who won a single star. "There are hundreds of small, family-style places in Italy which serve top food and were neglected."

Michelin publishes hotel and restaurant guides for Italy, France, Spain, Germany, England and the Benelux countries.

A Michelin spokesman said the ratings are based on the combination of quality of food, wine, service, ambience and that "something special."

"Someday we hope to give three stars in Italy, but we are still looking for the place," he said. "It's not easy to find that standard of excellence."

The 1976 guide has 13 new starred restaurants. Nineteen others listed in the 1975 guide lost their ratings, but Michelin is quick to say this doesn't mean Italian cuisine is going downhill.

"It's usually a case of a new cook and we like to wait before passing judgment on the place," the tire company spokesman said.

Italian knife and fork experts have always wondered why Rome, with its many restaurants and wide mix of regional Italian choices, doesn't rate one two-star restaurant.

Except for the Palermo restaurant, all of Italy's double-starred establishments are in Florence and the north.

"On average, the standard is higher in Rome than in the rest of Italy, both food and price-wise, but there is no really exceptional place," Michelin said.

But Italians shouldn't feel especially slighted. Michelin awarded three stars to only one restaurant outside of France itself — a place in Belgium.
